

Saint Paul MN – In the wake of the shooting death of Thurman Blevins, the Council for Minnesotans of African Heritage is working with community members to host a meeting to address several concerns. First, the Superintendent of the BCA will be present to clarify their role in the investigation and review public details related to the Blevins case. Second, the Council is working with community members to lead a discussion on the legacy of officer involved shootings and the need for justice and healing. Our hope is that community members will walk away with an understanding of the investigative process and resources to address the trauma caused by police violence.
