- Report ideas for the new Behavior Intervention Reporting Form (BIRF), DHS-5148 (PDF)
  - Length of time the hold took place – this will allow service providers to see if the holds are getting longer or shorter
  - Time between restraints – this will likely require the use of Microsoft Excel so it might not be something we can offer to service providers, but we can get this data for committee reviews
  - Location – this will allow service providers to see if the incidents frequently happen in a certain location
• The Positive support transition plan documents are up for public review. Further work will need to wait until the new templates and instructions are complete

• The Requests for Approval subcommittee has continued to work on reducing the need for buckle guards and has been offering additional technical assistance to providers and in-person meetings with people who receive services

• The EUMR subcommittee has been working on or will soon be working on:
  o Creating a new optional checklist that committee members can use to keep track of their work o Comparing trends in 911 and emergency use of manual restraint reports o Improving coordination between emergency responders and providers of DHS-licensed services o Assessing changes in the length of holds and the number of days between holds o Learning more about rate exceptions and banded rates
  o Discussing how to help teams use the right language to improve communication between providers and case managers

• What is going well? What should we change? What have we learned?
  o The in-person visits with expanded support teams have been really helpful

• The committee will receive an update on the following subjects at the next meeting:
  o Multiple topics related to 911 calls
  o Behavior Intervention Reporting Form, DHS-5148
  o Positive Support Transition Plan, DHS-6810, and related documents
