

If your provider stops services, you still have options.

Hau/Han, Boozhoo, we wish to provide information to people who may experience a service disruption to some Medicaid benefits for behavioral health or long-term care services.

Minnesota DHS is checking providers across the state to make sure they follow the law and give safe, high-quality care. Some providers will be disenrolled from the Medicaid (Medical Assistance) program during this process. Providers can choose to close, or they may appeal and continue serving people during the appeal period.

If you have a case manager or care coordinator:

Contact them first for help finding a new provider.

Not sure? Contact your Tribal Nation or county human services office or call your health plan's member services.

If you do not have a case manager or care coordinator:

Representatives from DHS may contact people at risk of losing services for the following service areas:

- Help with daily tasks: Personal Care Assistance (PCA) and Community First Services and Supports (CFSS)
- Mental health support: Intensive Residential Treatment (IRT) and Assertive Community Treatment (ACT)
- Stability and independent living skills: Adult Rehabilitative Mental Health Services (ARMHS) and Peer Services
- Autism services: Early Intensive Developmental and Behavioral Intervention (EIDBI)
