Overview
The second year of Minnesota's Self Determination Project concentrated on operationalizing Year One Project frameworks. Education, system redesign and the development of individually controlled resources continued to be the focus of activities and contracts. Regional differences across local project sites provided opportunities for a variety of methodologies to be piloted. Project frameworks were strengthened through collaboration with consumers, families, providers, advocates and community members. Such collaborative efforts assisted to promote self determination principles and to yield measurable outcomes.

Consumer Characteristics
As of January 31, 1999, ninety-nine consumers are Project participants. There are 531 additional consumers who have been positively impacted by self determination philosophy and methodologies, although they have chosen not to be part of a formal project. The number of consumers interested in self determination exceeded Project expectations for the second year of operation. TABLE 1 contains general consumer characteristic information.

REPORT QUESTIONS

1. What are the Project's objectives and how has the Project met them in this year?

Goal # 1: Improve management and administration of services

Objective: 1a: Provide local entities responsibility for local resources and implications for their use

Progress Status: Medicaid waiver amendments that promote self determination were approved by HCFA in December 1997. Local project sites have been assisting consumers to individualize and direct their own supports through use of the amendment provisions. Technical assistance for implementing creative support options is on-going. A self determination focus group, the Future's Initiative, has initiated legislation that supports consumer-directed supports.
Objective 1b: Develop service approaches to meet the needs of the geographic area being served
Progress Status: Person centered planning facilitators are available to meet individual consumer planning needs. Project sites have developed and implemented education plans specific to identified local issues.

Objective 1c: Increase incentives for people to remain in local communities
Progress Status: Medicaid waiver amendments approved by HCFA in December 1997 promote individualized supports building on local community resources. All local project sites are working with providers to support consumer choice to live and work in the community the consumer chooses. A housing workgroup has developed strategies for promoting consumer controlled housing. Efforts to decrease public guardianship have strengthened person centered relationships promoting community connections.

Objective 1d: Support local communities to analyze and expand capacity to meet the needs of local citizens
Progress Status: Project counties have assessed their available resources to meet needs. Activities outlined in Objectives 1b and 1c support this objective. Local project sites implemented action plans that are focused on building community supports. Such efforts were based on the generic strengths of the community and building self sufficiencies at the local level. See Table 3 for site specific activities.

Objective 1e: Increase competition among service providers and choice of service providers
Progress Status: Project counties have promoted the development of non-traditional support options. The state and local project sites have provided consumer focused training and self determination information to providers and state provider organizations. Provider organizations are developing strategies to focus on customer service. A Consumers Reports guide that profiles providers is in the final development stage.

Goal # 2: Improve service financing and design

Objective 2a: Provide for and support individual resource allocation and choice
Progress Status: Each local site has developed methodologies for creating and implementing individual budgets. Computer software is being developed to assist with budget tracking. Employer of record options have been developed and implemented. A resource allocation tool is being piloted.

Objective 2b: Support individuals and families who are controlling their own resources
Progress Status: Local project counties are using self advocacy agencies to promote consumer education. Individualized assistance is being provided to each project consumer. A consumer handbook "Finding the Support You Need", which provides a "consumer friendly" format to address employer/employee relationship issues, has been completed and is being utilized. A Blue Earth County publication, "It's My Life" provides a reference for planning and managing supports.

Objective 2c: Develop and implement a rational means for resource allocation
Progress Status: A resource allocation tool is being piloted. The Project System Redesign Workgroup continues to work on strategies for funding flexibility and addressing access and equitability issues.

Objective 2d: Integrate all expenditures into single budgets for flexibility and efficiency
Progress Status: Local sites have developed accounting systems to separately track funding streams, although funding for supports appear seamless to the consumer. Consumers know their support costs and are active participants in budget development. The Project System Redesign Workgroup is collecting and analyzing statewide data to develop an action plan for pooling resources. Blue Earth and Olmsted counties continue to participate in the managed care demonstration project.
Objective 2e: Develop methods and support to transition from obsolete services
Progress Status: Stakeholders, focus groups and steering committees representing provider and consumer organizations are working on transition strategies. On-going education and training sessions are key components for promoting consumer directed supports.

Objective 2f: Develop a basic package of services for all persons with developmental disabilities
Progress Status: Objective discontinued and approved as per Don Shumway's November 30, 1998 written correspondence. Project staff, consumers and stakeholders viewed the objective as creating a "one size fits all service system. A focus on activities that promote a more individualized, seamless and simple process for determining supports was determined to be a greater benefit.

Objective 2g: Support greater innovation and benefit in work and other day programs
Progress Status: The Medicaid MR/RC Waiver amendments approved in December 1997 increased flexibility for individualized supports. Work and day providers participated on advisory/steering groups to develop ideas for consumer-directed supports. Contracting processes were changed to increase options for consumers to hire supports from their employer rather than a traditional vocational provider.

Goal #3: Improve access to services

Objective 3a: Increase equity in access and resources for persons with similar needs
Progress Status: A resource allocation tool is being piloted. The Project system redesign workgroup continues to work on strategies for funding flexibility and addressing access and equitability issues. The Project has contracted with the University of Minnesota to provide a formative evaluation. One area of the evaluation will focus on the impact of resource allocation on consumers. This information will be available in Project Year 3.

Objective 3b: Increase access to and resources for culturally appropriate services
Progress Status: Cultural specific needs are being addressed at the local project sites through individualized person centered planning. A contract is being developed to provide consultation and technical assistance to the Project in building community connections across all cultures, improving access to culturally competent supports, and defining self determination across cultures.

Objective 3c: Provide for local experimentation with expanded eligibility
Progress Status: The completion criteria for this objective was changed and approved November 30, 1998 through written correspondence from Don Shumway. The Project will track the Managed Care Demonstration Project activities as a reference for future action plans. Report 1 from the University of Minnesota evaluation found that Minnesota's Self Determination Project design and methodologies are transferable to additional disability groups.

Objective 3d: Establish an ethical basis for access decisions
Progress Status: Objective discontinued and action approved as per Don Shumway's November 30, 1998 written correspondence. The Project System Redesign Workgroup will continue to address equitability and access issues through Project Year 3.

Goal #4: Improve quality assurance and monitoring

Objective 4a: Design locally based systems of quality assurance with consumer and family input within guidelines established by federal and state governments
Progress Status: Project sites have developed and are implementing quality assurance plans. See Table 3 for individual project site activities.
Objective 4b: Make choice and control an integral part of the definition of quality

Progress Status: Project quality frameworks and action plans promote consumers defining quality and satisfaction for themselves based on choices made. Each local project site has incorporated choice and control as part of all planning and supports activities. The contracted evaluation will provide additional direction in this area.

Objective 4c: Link quality assurance systems with quality improvement support services

Progress Status: The first year of state consolidated standards implementation was completed. Local project sites have utilized ACD training outcomes from Minnesota's Performance Based Contracting Initiative. Local site evaluation protocols include quality improvement. The Region 10 Quality Assurance Initiative developed and began implementing a tool that involves consumer input for defining individual quality as well as the overall service delivery system.

Goal #5: Redesign Roles

Objective 5a: Renegotiate and redesign traditional roles of governmental administrative employees as necessary to achieve project goals

Progress Status: Local project sites are providing extensive training, mentoring, and support for changing case management roles. Blue Earth and Olmsted counties have developed a single individual service plan which supports redesign. The state CSMD division revised its mission and vision to focus on self determination as a philosophy for all division work.

Objective 5b: Establish appropriate support systems to assist local entities, consumers, families and service providers to fulfill new roles

Progress Status: Education activities at the local project level and input from consumer organizations have yielded direct service round table discussions, the development of support action plans, and implementation of public relation plans. The development of computerized tracking systems, handbooks, and consumer guides have provided support. The frameworks for peer mentoring were developed and are to be implemented in Project Year 3.

Objective 5c: Evaluate project implementation and outcomes to refine project as needed

Progress Status: Stakeholders, workgroups, consumer organizations, and contracted evaluation activities provide feedback on regular intervals throughout the Project. The University of Minnesota evaluation completed Report 1 covering the period from February 1997 through August 1998.

TABLE 2 provides a status report on Project tasks and time lines.

TABLE 3 provides information on state and local project site activities supporting the Project goals and objectives.
2. Have any internal problems been encountered during this year that are related to the Project's design, collaborations, staffing, operations, or other Project factors?

Changes in project support staff at the state and county level moderately impacted Project progress. Olmsted County's projected progress slowed due to the change in supervisory staff. In September, administration and project links were improved and progress activities were enhanced in the areas of accessing consumer support grant funds, developing checking accounts, improving contracting procedures, and enhancing service coordination options.

State division leadership, division reorganization, and project support staff experienced reassignments in Project Year One. The transitions associated with these changes continued into Project Year Two. Delays caused by the transitions are viewed as temporary and effected system redesign work, but not education or the development of individualized budgets.

Two project sites’ self determination activities build on collaboration with Minnesota's Managed Care Demonstration Project. Delays in that demonstration project have caused delays for those local sites. Areas impacted include implementing a funding assessment/allocation tool, developing partnerships with some providers, determining rate capitations, and pooling funding streams. The two counties effected continually assess the impact of delays and adjust their methodologies and work plans accordingly. Although delays may impact methodologies used to meet objectives, it is anticipated that Self Determination Project objectives will be met within the three year time line.

3. Are there problems or successes caused by factors external to the Project?

Categorical funding streams, which could be considered external factors both at the state and federal level, create barriers for consumers to purchase supports in a simple manner. Gaining legislative support for system redesign is a slow process. Issue prioritizing from a political perspective is an external factor that can impede progress. The Self Determination Project is working with consumers, provider organizations and other stakeholders to plan and support legislative proposals and to educate communities.

Promoting self determination philosophy and methodologies in the public school system has been difficult. Development of single, coordinated service plans continues to be a challenge when many disciplines try to come together to support a person. Local Project sites began joint training sessions with school personnel to develop working relationships and promote self determination. This activity will continue in Project Year Three.

The Region 10 Quality Assurance Initiative tool has created a greater awareness of person centered thinking. Although this initiative is a regional effort, it has positively influenced Project work.

Provider licensing reform promoted provider involvement in person centered planning and outcome based service provision which supports self determination philosophy.

As referenced in question 2 above, Olmsted and Blue Earth Counties have experienced delays in activities that are linked to the managed care demonstration project. These delays create the need to revise materials and work plans.

4. If you are working in collaboration with other organizations, or depend on other organizations or institutions to meet the objectives of this Project, how are those relationships working?

The State and local Project sites partnership has been viewed as a positive relationship. Each local project site has emphasized collaborative efforts with local stakeholders, businesses and community organizations. These efforts continued to support education, information dissemination, and legislation into the second year of the Project.

Dakota County's collaborative efforts with Southview Bank, where consumer voucher checking accounts have been established, Dakota County Provider Training Networks, Arc Suburban, People's Rights Group, People First Suburban, and Mankato Rehabilitation Center, have developed positive results to support consumers in unique and creative ways.
Olmsted and Blue Earth Counties' work with People First and the local Arc has created opportunities to reach people outside of the typical social service network. The building of community connections has yielded employer of record options, self advocacy training and conference planning. Collaborative work with licensed providers has increased an awareness to focus on consumer centered businesses and not “people management.”

5. Have there been any key dissemination activities during the past year?
As reflected in the Bibliography, information dissemination has taken several forms. State and local project staff met regularly with community groups, presented at conferences, and provided information to citizen groups, boards and councils. Communications and public relations activities have emphasized understanding and applying self determination principles.

Presentation and meeting experiences this past year have yielded valuable information. Because people have had limited experience with self determination, the Project found that a variety of dissemination methodologies is key to creating an in depth understanding of role changes, consumer directed supports, risk and informed decision making.

6. Does the Project have other sources of support?
Local project sites and community project supports have exceeded projected expectations. Consumer self advocacy groups, stakeholders, families, and community organizations have volunteered approximately 3,500 person-hours to support project activities. At the local project sites, consultation time and assistance from county departments not directly involved with the Project exceeded expectations.

Non-project counties such as Freeborn and Hennepin actively supported self determination by attending self determination meetings, sharing ideas and discussing regional issues.

7. What are your plans for the Project next year?
Next year the Project's work will continue to focus on education, system redesign, and promoting consumer choice and control. State and local advisory groups, workgroups and steering committees will assist to develop action plans and methodologies to address challenges. Planning for statewide implementation will be a priority. As part of this planning, target areas include technical assistance, education, incentives to promote self determination, state departments and local coordination and collaboration, quality assurance and system redesign to make self determination methodologies standard practice for Minnesotans with disabilities.

8. Is there anything else you want to tell the Foundation?
The Project has been demonstrating that self determination methodologies and philosophy make a positive difference in consumers’ lives by creating opportunities for consumers to have the freedom and authority to direct their supports. As consumers accept the benefits and risks for choices made, they become accountable for spending public money in ways that assure health and safety and that are life enhancing. Consumers and their support persons have limited experience with self determination. Changing roles, taking responsibility and approaching service delivery in new ways create challenges. The Project has learned that self determination is not an “all or none” approach, but a transition using informed decision making to live a chosen life.

Minnesota's Project work has created interest and become the foundation for non-project counties to develop self determination work plans and seek additional information and assistance to promote self determination in their regions.

The National Self Determination Project has created both an awareness for the need to change service delivery systems and provided a valuable opportunity for states to take system redesign action. As Self Determination Project participants, the Minnesota Department of Human Services, Blue Earth County, Dakota County and Olmsted County have implemented system redesign, education and individualized budget methodologies that would be transferable to all Minnesota counties.

Minnesota recommends that the Foundation continue to support communication and sharing information amongst interested states. The Self Determination Web-site and intranet have been helpful. Assisting with activities to increase consumer participation in communication activities is also recommended.
